

DIED BRAVELY
ON GALLOWESDr. H. H. Crippen Executed
in London Today

FOR MURDER OF HIS WIFE

After a Night of Fitful Sleeping, He Met
Death Calmly After Earnest Talk with Father Carey of the Roman Church.

London, Nov. 23.—Dr. H. H. Crippen was hanged at 9 o'clock this morning in the yard of the Pentonville jail for murdering his wife. He died with the same courage which he has displayed since he was arrested on board the ship as he was about to land at Quebec. He marched to the gallows unflinching and was calm as the noose was adjusted about his neck. The springing of the trap dropped him seven feet, and the physician reported that his neck was broken, death being instantaneous.

Ethel Leneve, who was his former stenographer and who was arrested while traveling with him to America, as his son, did not see her lover after the heart-breaking scene of yesterday. She was booked for passage to New York on the steamship Majestic which sailed at noon today. Her name was given on the books as Miss Allen. The court had freed her of the charge of being an accessory after the fact of the murder.

Joined Roman Church.
Crippen joined the Roman church, and just before he was hanged, he received the last rites of the church from Father Carey of the Church of the Sacred Heart. The authorities refused to allow questioning of Crippen about his reported confession. They denied that he had confessed, and the London Times reported today that he did confess.

Crippen's Last Hours.
The condemned man did not sleep last night except fitfully. He tossed about on his bed and frequently he arose and asked the deathwatch the time. Father Carey arrived at daybreak and he spent the remainder of Crippen's life with him in the cell. Crippen talked earnestly with Father Carey and frequently expressed solicitude for his wife. He professed that he was prepared for death. When offered breakfast this morning he refused to partake of it. Shortly afterwards he was led to the gallows. Only a few officials watched the execution.

Favorable Sentiment Towards Crippen.
From the time that his wife, Belle Elmore, the actress, disappeared up to the day of his conviction, public sentiment against Crippen grew stronger, but in his last hours the American was not without sympathy. Clara Ethel Leneve, the woman for whom the crown alleged Crippen killed his wife, continued her visits to the prisoner's cell and there are others who shake their heads and declare that they would never convict a man on circumstantial evidence. From expressions in the papers and the gossip of the street it is plain that no other murder case of recent years has taken such a hold on the feelings of all classes.

KILLED IN ELEVATOR FALL.

Charles H. Shattuck Victim at South

Shattuck was almost instantly killed and his companion horribly crushed and bruised, and it is feared internally injured.

Shattuck was 60 years old, resided in Dorchester, and had been in charge of the elevators at the South station ever since the building was opened. He was a veteran of the Civil war. Fitzgerald is 33 years of age and also resides in Dorchester.

The building, since the closing of the school some 12 years ago, has been kept in good repair and the required alterations will not be expensive.

The school endowment fund, the income of which will be used to run the institution, has all been successfully invested, and nearly $5,000 will be available annually for the school's maintenance. Accommodations will be had for between 50 and 60 students.

Show Man Is a Vermonter.

W. Jenkins Hewitt of Chicago, advance agent for the Great Powers company, which appears here next week, was in the city today. In connection with the appearance of the company in this city, it is interesting to note that the owner and manager of the Mutual Vaudeville company of New York, which concerns controls next week's attraction, is Bert B. Perkins, a Vermonter by birth. He is widely known throughout the state and is closely related to both the Lane and the Perkins families, members of which may be found in every town. Mr. Perkins passed the greater part of his boyhood in the state, going from home directly to New York, where he engaged in the business of booking theatrical companies. For the past few years he has been active in securing foreign vaudeville acts for this country, and in this line he is probably without a peer.

VERMONT MAN READY
TO STAND TRIALWilliam H. Crowe, Attendant at Cranston, R. I. Insane Asylum, Is Now Charged With Manslaughter.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 23.—William H. Crowe of Vermont, who came as an attendant at the Rhode Island insane asylum in Cranston in October, yesterday decided to stand trial on the manslaughter charge against him, waiving his right to file special pleas.

The preliminary hearing on the charge that violence used by Crowe resulted in the death of Romeo Charbonneau, a crazy inmate, will be held Nov. 30. Crowe, who is still confined in the jail at Cranston unable to furnish bonds, persists in his plea of not guilty.

"I have abandoned the idea of entering a special plea," said Attorney Arnold yesterday, "because I don't want to tie up my client's case any longer than necessary. I think I had a very good point in questioning the validity of Chief Crowe's powers, but if a special plea was entered it would not be possible to get my client before the December grand jury if he is to be bound over. I am going to try and have the case come before the December grand jury. If he is bound over, in order that he may come to an early trial." The special plea questioned the validity of the office which Chief of Police Crowe of Cranston now holds. He arrested Crowe and it was contended that he had no power to issue a warrant.

MAN KILLED BY CAR.

Struck Near Haymarket Square Station in Boston.

Boston, Nov. 23.—An unidentified man fell in front of a north-bound car in the outward bound Haymarket Square station of the subway shortly before 9 o'clock last night, and was fatally injured. The fatality was witnessed by many passengers who were on the platform, including many women, and for a time there was considerable excitement.

The only clues to the man's identification were the initials "J. J. O. B." in his hat and the name of W. H. Hill on his coat.

The fender passed over his body, but he was kept from being dragged under the trucks by the life guard. Motorman Tracey reversed his power and applied the brakes, stopping the car before it had moved but little more than its length. The man was taken to Relief hospital, but was dead when the ambulance reached there. The body was taken to the North Grove street morgue.

The man was between 40 and 45 years of age, 5 feet 9 inches in height and weighed 160 pounds. He had brown hair, was slightly bald and had a brown mustache and gray eyes. He wore a black serge coat and vest and gray trousers, white shirt with green and pink stripes, white collar, red necktie, green socks and brown boots.

He had a gold open face watch, with a heavy link chain and a Knights of Columbus charm.

GODDARD TRUSTEES

mitory on the Land—Lot Faces
82½ Feet on Merchant St. and
Is 100 Feet Deep.

In following out plans for the development of the school, the trustees of Goddard intend to have, through their executive committee, purchase a piece of property on Merchant street, adjoining the campus, which was part of the G. B. Durkee estate and which has recently been held by Boston parties. It is a double lot, having a frontage of 82½ feet on Merchant street and running back 100 feet to the campus, and it now contains a small house. The purchase was made through the F. B. Cate Real Estate agency, and the price was $2,000.

At the present time the accommodations for them are sufficient in the main building on the campus and the Thompson Memorial building.

IN NEW LOCATION.

F. E. Burr's Jewelry Business Now In the Bolster Block.

After successfully conducting business in the C. W. Averill block for nearly eleven years, F. E. Burr, the jeweler, is now located at 114 Main street in the apartment in the Bolster building formerly occupied by the Barre Savings Bank and Trust Co. In his new headquarters, Mr. Burr, has a well-appointed and up to date store that will compare favorably with any business of its nature in the state. Two large plate glass windows assure ample light and facilities. On each side of the main entrance is located a bench for repair work. The remainder of the front apartment is taken up by counters and display cases, all of which are of an improved model. A well arranged room in the rear of the store will be devoted to benches for repairing clocks and jewelry.

F. E. Burr, the owner and establisher of the store, came to Barre from Massachusetts, where he had previously engaged in the jewelry business. During his residence here, he has devoted his undivided attention to the retail jewelry business, and is, therefore, thoroughly conversant with all of its details. Holding a license from the state board of optometry, he also makes a specialty of testing and fitting eyes. In re-opening his business in the new headquarters, this old and reliable jewelry concern will doubtless receive the same generous share of the public patronage which has been accorded it in the past.

The proprietor invites the public in general to visit his store and to make a careful inspection of the new headquarters.

After talking with Mrs. Paits, the grand juror requested the court to nol pross the case, stating that the woman had made conflicting statements in regard to the loss of her money, and as the boy had called for a jury trial he did not believe that the evidence that had been adduced to secure a warrant a trial being held. The court then nol prossed the case and discharged the boy.
